

Reading 1

Modern cars can run very fast – an Italian Lamborghini has a top speed of about 300 kilometers per hour, but there's a speed limit on the majority of motorways, so you can't go around 120 kph. Trains are usually faster than cars. The French high-speed train (TGV) goes 300kph with passengers, but the Maglev train is even faster, with a top speed of 430kph. This type of train travels just above the ground, not on it. There is only one of these in use at the moment. Of course, planes are faster than cars or trains. The new superjumbo (Airbus A380) can go 900kph – fast, but slower than the older Boeing 747 jumbo. This flies at 927kph. But life isn't all about speed. Ships are nice, easy way of traveling. They're slow – even the fastest passenger ship reaches only 66 kph – but they're more comfortable and more relaxing means of transport. Isn't that important sometimes too?

What kind of a shopper are you?

There are many different types of shoppers. There are people who shop online, people who shop in big department stores, people who shop in small shops. London is one of the best shopping areas in the world.

Jose: The speed shopper

Shopping habits: I really don't like shopping. I don't spend a lot of time in the shops and I never buy anything. Today I'm not shopping. I'm looking for a new suit. There is a great suit in the window of the shop. It's expensive but I can pay for it.

Hiromi: The frequent shopper

Shopping habits: I go shopping every weekend. I usually buy clothes for my family. I like big department stores. Today I'm carrying five bags. I bought a new dress, a new bag, a new coat, a pair of shoes and a belt. Time to go home!

Vince: The window shopper

Shopping habits: I come to Oxford Street about once a month but I don't usually spend any money. I like to look at the different things in the shops. Today I'm not looking for anything more. I'm now waiting for my friend. She's trying on a pair of jeans.

Ulrike: the careful shopper

Shopping habits: I always check the prices in different shops. I always look for the lowest price. Today I'm looking for a digital camera. I'm thinking about buying the one but I'm not sure. It's quite expensive.
